Two Bethel Men Injured In Blowout Accident

Frank Boyker and Durward Macdonald Saturday afternoon when Mr. Boyker's meat truck, driven by Mr. Mason, overturned several times when a tire blew out. The accident occurred near the home of Harry Brown on the Locke Mills road when the truck was headed down the hill toward Bethel village. The vehicle was kept in the road during the whole procedure although the cable guard fence was broken. The heavy meat box was left in the road some distance from the truck. The truck was completely wrecked.

Both occupants were badly shaken up. Mr. Boyker suffered bruises and a badly cut hand, and Mr. Mason was bruised besides receiving neck and back injuries.

33,000 VOLT LINE IS NOW SERVING BETHEL

Work of changing the Central Maine Power Company's line into Bethel from 11,000 to 33,000 volts was completed Sunday morning and the new sub-station on the Locke Mills road is now in use. The work has been in progress several months and included sub-station construction at Locke Mills and Bryant Pond, besides installing new insulators between West Paris and Bethel.

The 11,000 volt line had served this section since March 1926, when the Bethel Light Company plant ceased operation. Since then the company has added lines to Gilead, Newry and East Bethel and extended other lines. The use of electricity has increased greatly during these 16 years with the addition of several mills and the naturally greater use of household appliances, and it is expected that the higher voltage to the local station will make possible better service for a long time to come.

SCHOOLS IN DISTRICT OPEN TUES., SEPT. 8

The schools of the Bethel-Gilead-Greenwood-Newry-Upton Union District will open for the fall term on Tuesday, Sept. 8. The district is hampered by the shortage of teachers, and for this reason Supt. Carrie M. Wight is unable to give the list of teachers at present. It is expected however that new personnel can soon be listed to replace those who have resigned positions here.

An innovation this year will be a change in school hours. On account of war time which will continue through the year, schools will open at 9 a. m. and close at 4 p. m. Otherwise during the winter pupils on the longer conveyance routes would have to leave home before daylight.

This year the pupils of Mason will attend Bethel schools, the conveyance contract being held by Roderick McMillin, who also operates the bus bringing Albany students.

METHODIST CHURCH BEING REPAIRED, REDECORATED

The Methodist Church is undergoing extensive repairs. The roof has just been finished and now the interior will be beautifully refinished. Miss Barbara Moore of Bethel has accepted a position on the faculty of Fryeburg Academy. While at Bates she was active in the Women's Athletic Association, president of the Ski Club, secretary-treasurer of the Swimming Club, member of the Basketball Club, and served on the junior board of the Association and on the staff of the college newspaper.

Bethel State Guard Reserve Co. Named

The local company of the State Guard Reserve has been recognized and accepted by the State of Maine and given the name of 4th Company, Maine State Guard Reserves. This military company is the successor to the Home Guard which was formed here last fall as the Legion Brigade. There is still room in the organization for a few more volunteers.

Captain Leslie H. Coburn, who headed the Home Guard unit, has been appointed Captain and assigned to command the new company.

2,000,000 EAST COAST HOMES STILL LIGHTED WITH OIL

Almost forgotten in the East Coast petroleum transportation crisis are the more than 2,000,000 dwelling units along the Atlantic seaboard which, in this age of progress, still use kerosene or gasoline for household lighting.

The plight of the gasoline consuming motorist and of the fuel-oil burning home-owner naturally steals the spotlight now that overland transportation cannot meet the demand for petroleum products in the East. But in hundreds of thousands of farm homes and even in thousands of city dwellings in this area the kerosene or gasoline lamp still provides the only source of nighttime illumination.

Census reports just being issued show that there are 14,860,434 dwelling units in the 17 East Coast states and the District of Columbia, and that upwards of 2,000,000 of them have no lighting except petroleum-burning lamps. The actual figures cannot be determined yet because the report for Pennsylvania has not yet been published, but in the rest of the section the census shows 1,025,936 such dwellings, not including estimates for about 2 per cent of the dwellings for which this information was not obtained.

In Maine 49,180 or 19% of the 260,659 dwellings in the state are petroleum lighted the census reports.

Mrs. Mary Myers of Orono is visiting her son, Wilbur Myers, and family.

Termine whether fuel oil should be rationed in the east coast area this winter. Because of the shortage of fuel oil in the area, Mr. Ickes prohibited the hauling of automotive gasoline by rail in 20 Middle Western and Southwestern States in order to divert enough tank cars to carry 100,000 barrels of fuel oil daily to the rationed area. If the withdrawal of these 5,000 or 7,000 tank cars creates a shortage, rationing should be extended, Mr. Ickes said.

A WEEK of The WAR

War Production Chairman Nelson reported the U. S. is now producing munitions three and a half times the rate in November 1941, the month before Pearl Harbor. July production, he said, was 16 percent above June production, but 7 percent short of production forecasts made at the beginning of July.

Aircraft production increased 11 percent in July over June output, Mr. Nelson said. Although combat plane production rose 6 percent, it was not up to expectations. He also reported: overall ordnance production in July increased 25 percent over June output, and was very close to schedules; production of medium tanks was 35 percent greater than in the previous month and considerably ahead of schedules; light tanks up 15 percent also were ahead of schedules; anti-aircraft guns exceeded schedules by "a wide margin"; merchant ships were up 6 percent and "nearly on schedule for the month"; deliveries of major combat vessels were ahead of those in June and "considerably ahead of forecasts."

The War Front

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Australia reported Allied fighter pilots using new battle tactics shot down at least 13 Japanese planes, and probably 15 or more, out of an enemy fleet of 47 which attacked Darwin. No Allied planes were lost. The Navy reported the Marines' hold on at least three of the Solomon Islands is now well established. When 700 Japanese counter-attacked on one of the islands, 670 were killed and the other 30 taken prisoners, Pacific Fleet Commander Nimitz reported. The Marine losses were 28 killed and 72 wounded. Admiral Nimitz also announced a force of Marines made a successful landing on Makin Island, killed 80 Japanese, wrecked various installations and then withdrew.

U. S. Army headquarters, European theater, announced arrival in Britain of the largest U. S. convoy of the war, with more men and material for the American Air Forces which had already begun precision bombing by daylight of Nazi-occupied Europe. U. S. Flying Fortresses bombed the Nazi transportation system at Amiens and Abbeville. In a battle over the North Sea, four Flying Fortresses shot down three German fighters and damaged nine others, while all U. S. planes returned safely. A U. S. Ranger battalion joined with Canadian and British forces in a nine-hour raid on Dieppe, France. The Navy reported U. S. submarines operating in the Aleutians and in the Far East sank a cruiser or destroyer and damaged a destroyer, sank two cargo ships and a transport, and damaged another cargo ship. The torpedoing of seven more United Nations merchantmen by enemy submarines was announced.

Foreign Relations

President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull sent messages of solidarity to Brazil as that country became the first South American nation to declare war on Germany and Italy. The President said Wendell L. Willkie will tour Europe and the Near East as his special representative in order to correct the impression in those places that U. S. production is not all that it should be.

Army and Navy

The War Department said it will inaugurate this fall a voluntary pre-induction training program utilizing existing facilities of schools and colleges to meet present and future needs for properly trained personnel in the armed forces. Out of every 100 men inducted into the Army, about 63 are assigned to duties requiring specialized training, the Department said. The Army said it is organizing and training Port Battalions (composed mostly of former stevedores) for duty ov-ersens to insure prompt handling of U. S. military equipment for forces stationed throughout the world. The Department said checks payment of allowances to dependents of enlisted men of the Army, covering the first applications to be approved, will go out shortly after Sept. 1.

Selective Service

Selective Service Director Hershey said draft boards will begin calling men with dependents before Christmas. He said single men with "secondary" dependents, such as aged or crippled relatives, will be called first; married men whose wives work, next; then men with dependent wives; and finally men who have wives and children. He said the reservoir of 1-A men throughout the country is "practically exhausted." Selective Service Headquarters said Class 1-B (men fit for limited service only) will be eliminated, and beginning Sept. 1, all registrants who are not totally disqualified will be reclassified in 1-A, while those not suited for any military service will be placed in 4-F. In the case of men reclassified in 1-A, the Army will determine after induction whether they will be assigned to full or limited service.

Rationing

Tire quotas will have to follow a downward trend the rest of this year to keep within the amount of rubber earmarked by the WPB for the purpose, the Office of Price Administration said. The Office asked local rationing boards for "strictest possible interpretation" of a recent amendment to tire rationing regulations restricting truck eligibility to vehicles essential to the war effort or public health and safety.

CANADA CREATES A GIANT NEW INDUSTRY

KEEPING pace with the giant strides of progress in Canada's munitions program is the comparatively new industry which overhauls and repairs the wartime aircraft of the Dominion. The mechanics in the above photograph are shown working on an airplane engine in one of 14 factories in Canada devoted to this work. Altogether 74 plants are overhauling airframes, aircrews, instruments, tires, tubes and every part of fighting and training aircraft. The increased expenditure in this program from $25,000,000 in 1941 to $100,000,000 in 1942 reflects the speed of its growth. In 1941 Canada had in use 3,000 planes for training and coastal defense, while this year the figure has been doubled. The 5,000 men and women who were employed in repair last year have in 1942 been expanded to 20,000. Government expenditure in capital assistance to repair and overhaul factories is $12,000,000.

READY FOR ACTION, soldiers of the new Commando unit of the Fighting French line up in full raid equipment at the Wellington Barracks, England. Selected for duty in this unit because of their knowledge of the French coast, are many recruits from the fishing villages of Brittany. The SNAPSHOT GUILD
STORY-TELLING PICTURES

If you want to make your pictures tell a story, show your subjects in action. That's the secret of this fine snapshot.

MAKE your pictures tell a story! That's the standard advice experienced photographers usually give beginners. But how can it be done? That's the beginner's perennial question.

Well, there are several theories about the matter, but for the most part they can be summed up with "show your subjects in action." I think you'll get the idea if you glance at our illustration of the girl and child had just been standing there smiling at the camera the story would have been pretty weak. We would have had to stretch our imagination to guess that they had been picking flowers, or to determine why they were in the field in the first place.

But this way, we know at a glance why they are in the field, and what they are doing. The story is crystal clear because the photographer showed his subjects in action... doing something.

Of course, there are times when "action" is not necessary to tell the story. Certain types of group pictures, and portraits when you just want to get a pleasant record snapshot of your friends or family, come under this heading. It's perfectly all right in such instances to encourage the subjects to look at the camera. However, depicting some action is probably the best means of telling a story in most snapshots.

To get it in your pictures, snap your subjects while they are doing something while they are at work or play. Even if they are only looking at some distant object that will be sufficient, because the action is definitely implied.

Picture making that way offers greater opportunities than the old fashioned "watch the birdie" technique. Try it, and see how easy it is to make your pictures tell a story.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

Some of the most effective criticism of the government in its handling of the war effort has been based on the theory that there has been a definite and lamentable lack of frankness in telling the people what is going on. Many officials, this argument runs, seem to regard the people as children from whom unpleasant truths must be kept. One of the most common sayings in Washington circles today is that "the people aren't awake." The defenders of the people say that the people are more completely awake than a good many of the bigwigs in government—and that the extent of popular bewilderment as to the course of the war is directly attributable to a stupid kind of censorship.

In the newspaper fraternity, a peak of disgust was reached during the long drawn out trial of the eight Nazi saboteurs. The high Army officers who made up the trial court seemed to work on the principle that the people should be told absolutely nothing. Not until the strongest kind of pressure was brought to bear were newspapermen even permitted to view the trial chamber. And even then they were allowed in for only a few minutes—and the presiding General stopped all proceedings until they had left.

That is simply one example out of many that could be cited. There has been much criticism of what some authorities regard as the refusal of the Navy to tell the whole truth about Dutch Harbor and the occupation of certain Aleutian Islands. And lately, a San Francisco Judge brought serious charges against the ranking Army General in the Far West. Defenders of this General say that, in truth, he has done a first-class job, and they seemed to lie in the Army's tell-the-people-nothing-attitude.

There are obvious difficulties in the way of deciding precisely what information would be of benefit to the enemy, and so must be suppressed, and what can be told the public fully and frankly. But it seems virtually certain that in an extraordinary extent in refusing to release news which, according to the American tradition, should and must be told. And the fault is by no means confined to Army and Navy authorities. Time and time again, various non-military officials of the government have made completely conflicting statements about the same subject—as for instance, in news releases on the oil, rubber and automobile problems. Under those circumstances, it is no wonder that a very considerable part of the population is lost in a welter of confusion.

The main hope for ironing out this unfortunate business lies in Elmer Davis, the cool and canny head of the Office of War Information. Mr. Davis, it will be recalled, was given his appointment some months after the other governmental information bureaus had made an almost complete failure of the job. So far, Mr. Davis doesn't seem to have been able to make a great deal of headway. But according to reliable reports, he is working stubbornly, and is determined that eventually the American people shall be promptly and truthfully told everything it is possible to tell them. He is said to have the confidence of the President, and he isn't frightened by either the military or the civil brass hats.

In the meantime, Mr. Davis' OWI is apparently doing the best job possible under the circumstances.

More Canning Secrets

EVERYONE wonders how much to can. Well—you need greens four times a week, which adds up to two and a half quarts a month. You also need three and a half quarts each of tomatoes and one other vegetable per month. Multiply those three totals by the number of persons in the family, and that's your monthly quota of canned vegetables.

Mrs. Kiene

The object of canning is to fill the jars not just with food, but with health. Therefore, to save precious vitamins and minerals, use little or no water, bring to a steam quickly, cook in covered utensil and don't boil. In practice, those rules work out this way:

All vegetables must be blanched in order to "set" the color and prevent spoilage. But use only one cup of boiling water to four cups of vegetables. Allow one minute for tomatoes, five minutes for other vegetables. After that, quickly place food in air-tight jars to within one inch of top. Fill up jar with liquid in which vegetables were blanched. (If that's not enough, add boiling water for the food must be blanketed with water.) Add one teaspoon of salt. Then cap jar, and food is ready for processing.

For alkaline vegetables, use a pressure cooker if possible and maintain constant pressure of ten pounds. Acid vegetables and fruits can be canned either in the oven or water bath.

stances. On August 8, it issued a statement on the war situation which is hearteningly optimistic.

It isn't full of high-sounding phrases. Instead, it is simple, factual and impressive. It points out that so far our Allies have done most of the fighting, and that this state of affairs can't continue indefinitely. On the subject of production, it says that "we have done pretty well, but not well enough." It observes frankly that "we could lose this war"—and that it's going to take an infinitely greater effort than we have so far made to win it. And it says one thing that every American should remember: "We are fighting fanatical men out for world domination and we can beat them only if we want to beat them as badly as they want to beat us."

In conclusion, it's a reasonable guess that, in the future, the American people will gradually get more and more accurate information on all the phases of the war than they have had before. There is a definite and growing movement against unnecessary and reasonable censorship, either direct or indirect. And there is a growing feeling that John Jones, who must do the fighting, working and paying that total war demands, is entitled to every fact.

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

Aid for an Ally

LEND-LEASE ASSISTANCE for Norway was guaranteed recently as Secretary of State Cordell Hull (right) and Norway's Ambassador, Wilhelm Moberg, signed an agreement in Washington. Norway's merchant fleet, the fourth largest in the world and one of the most modern, is transporting supplies to United Nations armies all over the world. Lend-lease help from the U. S. will mean more ships for this great convoy fleet.

The young monarch is an aviation enthusiast and an expert pilot. Here King Peter, in the uniform of the R.A.F., inspects the removable belly-tank of a new Warhawk fighter plane at a Curtiss Wright factory. Planes of this type were used by Gen. MacArthur on Bataan and are in service in China, Russia and the Middle East.

BETHEL GIRL RECEIVES

JUNIOR GUIDE CERTIFICATE

Miss Rachel Gordon has returned home from Camp Makaria, where she has been counselor for the summer. While she was there she took the State examination for Junior Maine Guide and received her certificate, also a letter of congratulation from Governor Sewall, which follows:

Dear Miss Gordon,

I am very happy to enclose herewith your Junior Maine Guide award. I would much rather present it to you personally in the State House as is the custom, but this year due to the shortage of gasoline and tires it seems better to mail it to you.

I know you have worked very hard in the preparation and in taking the test, so that this award actually means a great deal to you.

There is no better way that a young person can prepare themselves for the days ahead than to learn to take care of themselves in the great out-of-doors. You have had this opportunity in your camp this summer. That you have passed the Maine Junior Guides requirements proves that you have made the most of these opportunities.

Let me congratulate you
Sincerely yours,
SUMNER SEWALL

HOW DO YOU USE YOUR MILK QUOTA?

Source of data — U. S. D. A.

An Average Person
Consumes the Equivalent of
390 Quarts of Milk
Each Year

More milk is consumed in fluid form in the United States than in any other way. As milk and cream, the average person consumes the equivalent of 159 quarts of milk a year. Milk is the nation's No. 1 protective food. "To achieve optimum health, consumption should be greatly increased," states Mrs. Ethel Austin Martin, Director of Nutrition for the National Dairy Council. The minimum recommendation of one pint of milk for each adult and one quart of milk for each child calls for an average per capita consumption of about 270 quarts of milk in fluid form.

Butter is the best natural food source of vitamin A. It also contains certain other growth factors not found in most fats. The average person in the United States consumes 16.6 pounds of butter a year which is much less than is desirable for optimum health. To make this amount of butter, 157 quarts of milk are required.

Because cheese contains nearly all the ingredients of milk, it is considered one of the most important of the protective foods. From the standpoint of both economy and food value, it deserves a much more important place in the American diet. The 5.7 pounds of cheese which the average American consumes in a year requires 26 quarts of milk in its manufacture.

Ice cream is rapidly coming to be appreciated for its palatability, food value and economy. Consumption of ice cream is more than double that of eight years ago and is increasing rapidly. Nineteen quarts of milk are needed to make the 10.8 quarts of ice cream that the average person consumes in a year.

In addition to the above well-known products, 29 quarts of milk go into the manufacture of concentrated and dry milk products.

NAVY ON THE DESERT

SHOOTING UP ROMMEL'S TROOPS is the latest job taken on by the Royal Navy. In close support of the hard-fighting 8th Army in North Africa, warships of the British Mediterranean fleet have several times sailed perilously close inshore to bombard Axis troops and supplies. They have pumped more than 2000 shells in six nights into Matruh harbor alone. Planes of the fleet, operating from desert airfields, as shown in this picture, are joining with the R.A.F. to bomb and machine-gun the daylight's out of the Axis troops.

The real prosperity of any community is dependent largely on the loyalty of its people to that community's interests. In its ideal form all would always do all they could to promote the interest of their own locality.

The merchants of any center are identified especially with the interests of those living in their localities and therefore you will find those most interested telling of their wares and services in their home newspapers.

Thus it is to the advantage of every Citizen reader to do business with our advertisers. You will find them sincerely interested in the welfare of their customers, and often able to advise regarding suitable merchandise and to secure desired goods which may be out of stock.

You will help yourself, your merchant, and the Citizen by patronizing the advertisers in these columns.

Our Work Must Satisfy

Business and social stationery, or any form of printed matter, is an accurate reflection of the taste and standing of any person or company. Therefore it behooves one to see that all their needs in this line are cared for correctly.

In many cases good printing costs but little if any more than slipshod work. Workmanship, choice of paper and typography are matters which depend very much upon experience, and this experience often leads to economies of production which may result in lower prices for superior results.

Teacher Given Shower Here Saturday Evening

It was a large and gay crowd in festive mood that assembled on the lawn of Brinck House last Saturday evening when Mrs. Percy Brinck and her daughters, Mrs. Arthur Dudley and Mrs. Alfred Taylor, gave a miscellaneous shower for Miss Virginia Wolcott of Portland. Those invited were friends, parents and former pupils of Miss Wolcott, who for two years was a successful teacher of music and fifth grade subjects in Bethel.

Upon arriving, the guests were seated in front of a towering white canopy representing a church steeple, with a large wedding bell overhanging the white pulpit which was heaped with mysterious packages. Arrangements had been made with Mrs. Brinck's daughter, Kathryn, and her husband, Alfred Taylor, of Portland to bring Miss Wolcott and her fiance, Mr. Plummer, with them to the party. Their arrival was timed so that the guests were all present when a loud blast on the Taylors' automobile horn signaled their coming. The long strings of colored electric lights were dimmed until Miss Wolcott was escorted by Mrs. Brinck to her place of honor. Great was her surprise to hear youthful members of a band which she had helped to form burst into music directed by Mrs. Dudley. This was followed by an original poem written by Mrs. Pearl Ashby Tibbetts and read by Mrs. Godwin. Then it was suggested that Miss Wolcott should herself lead the band in playing "Honor Band," a favorite selection of her pupils.

The opening of the numerous gifts which were both useful and decorative, with the reading of the more or less personal greetings which accompanied them, afforded interest and amusement. Appetizing refreshments of punch and cookies were served together with a very beautifully decorated bride's cake, the handwork of Mrs. Brinck and Mrs. Dudley. The lovely flowers adorning the tables and lawn were donated by Mrs. Tibbetts.

The evening came to a close with everybody extending felicitations and congratulations to the betrothed couple whose wedding takes place in September and thanks to the members of the Brinck family for their gracious hospitality.

FIRST FROST ARRIVES TUESDAY MORNING

Considerable damage was suffered Tuesday morning by the more tender crops when a heavy frost struck in many places. In spite of too heavy rains early in the season and later dry periods there was promise of good yields with a little time. A second frost Wednesday morning apparently was less severe.

If It's Heavily Advertised It HAS to be GOOD

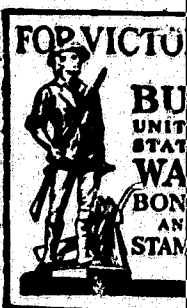

OUR BRAND of democracy was won for us, and is being held for us, by men who chose their own careers, owned big farms, built big factories, and did what selling was necessary to keep those farms and factories busy.

One of the biggest aids in mass selling is mass advertising. In the long run, it "polices" itself.

Advertising of poor products always fails. Only a first rate product, fairly priced, can stand the dazzling glare of national advertising. When you think of the heavily advertised soups, soaps, breakfast foods, mechanical refrigerators, automobiles, silverware, radios — you are thinking of the aristocrats among commercial articles.
